Course Overview

Now is a great time to join the Aged Care or Disability sector.

The CHC33015 Certificate III in Individual Support (Ageing or Disability) course is a nationally recognised qualification providing you with the skill set and knowledge to gain entry level employment into this dynamic, growing industry.

The qualification reflects the role of workers in the community and / or residential setting who follow an individualised plan to provide person-centred support to people who may require support due to ageing, disability or some other reason. Work involves using discretion and judgment in relation to individual support as well as taking responsibility for own outputs.

Workers have a range of factual, technical and procedural knowledge, as well as some theoretical knowledge of the concept and practices required to provide person-centred support. The course structure at The MaraWay Training is flexible so you can choose to specialise in Ageing or Disability... or both.

The first 9 units are common units in both qualifications. You then choose either 4 Ageing or 4 Disability elective units to complete your qualification. And if you are lucky enough to have already completed one of the qualifications, you can simply complete 4 units in the other specialisation and gain an additional certificate. Call The MaraWay Training now and take your career to a new level.
